Curriculum vitae

Giannoula Giannoulopoulou is Professor of Linguistics in the Department of Italian Language and Literature.

Education: Bachelor Degree (1988), Greek Literature, University of Athens, Department of Greek Literature,

Master's Degree, (1994), Linguistics, Aristotle University of Thessaloniki, Department of Italian Language and Literature, PhD (1999), Linguistics, Aristotle University of Thessaloniki, Department of Italian Language and Literature.

Courses Taught: Theoretical Linguistics, Contrastive Linguistics Morphology, Syntax, Lexicology and Lexicography.

Research interests:

a. Contrastive analysis of Modern Greek and Italian, b. Morphological analysis, c. "Diglossia" issues in Modern Greek and Italian, d. Grammaticalization theory and the linguistic theories in general.

She has published several articles in Greek and international journals (Glossologia, Studies for the Greek Language, Sprachtypologie und Universalienforschung (STUF), Languages in Contrast κ.α.) and she is co-editor of the volume Contrastive Studies in Morphology and Syntax, (Bloomsbury, 2020). She is a member of the Editorial Board of the international journal Languages in Contrast. She has also written the monographs: Morphosemantic comparison of affixes and confixes in Modern Greek and Italian (in Greek) (2000), Issues of contrasting languages. The emergence of the definite article in Greek and Italian (in Greek). (2016).
She is also Director of the Computational Stylistics Laboratory of the Department.