

Gerassimos D. Pagratis (Corfu, 1970) is Full Professor of Italian History and Civilization at the Department of Italian Language and Literature of the National and Kapodistrian University of Athens (NKUA). He studied Classical Philology at the University of Lecce (Italy) and Medieval & Modern Greek Philology at the Department of Philology of the School of Philosophy at NKUA. He completed his postgraduate studies at the Department of History of the Ionian University, where he received his Ph.D. degree in 2001 on the dissertation "Maritime Trade in Venetian-Ruled Corfu: 1496-1538". During the period 2003-2004 he was a postdoctoral researcher at the same Department working on the research project "Trade and Shipping in the Ionian Islands during the Napoleonic Wars" with a scholarship from the State Scholarship Foundation.

He has served as Adjunct Lecturer of Maritime History in the Department of Shipping, Trade & Transport of the University of Aegean (2001-2004) and since 2006 he has been a member of the teaching staff (ΣΕΠ) of Hellenic Open University in the thematic unit "Social and Economic History of Europe" of which he also serves as the Coordinator (2017 to date).

He has been teaching at the Department of Italian Language and Literature since 2004 at the undergraduate and postgraduate level. Courses he had taught include History and Culture of Italy, History of the Venetian Republic, Introduction to Archival Research, and Modern Greek Diaspora in the Italian Peninsula, 19th c. Since 2016 he is the Director of the Postgraduate Program "Greek-Italian Studies: History, Literature, Classical Tradition" and coordinates the Seminar of Italian History and Historiography.

His studies on the post-medieval and early modern history of Italy, the sources and historiography of early modern Italy, the maritime economic history of early modern Mediterranean, the Latin monastic orders in the Venetian maritime state, as well as the economic, social, and political history of the Septinsular Republic have been published in Greek and international scientific journals, conference proceedings and collective volumes.

Since September 2020 he is Head of the Department of Italian Language and Literature at the National and Kapodistrian University of Athens.